Dear Kavita,

I hope the winter winds taking are good care of you. The final exams are knocking at the door. I am sure you will achieve a good rank as always. If you want to take a break and relax I can suggest a movie. It is "Murder on the Orient Express" which released a few weeks back. My sister had got the DVD to lighten me up. The movie is based on the Agatha Christie's 1934 novel by the same title. The movie narrates the story of the murder of an American businessman who is not very popular, which takes place aboard the Orient Express, which is travelling from Istanbul to Calais. The train is stranded due to a snowdrift and Poirot, the detective, must find the perpetrator in the Calais coach before he strikes again. The movie is set in the back drop of 1934, which means no CCTV cameras or laptops or cellular Phones. This makes it fun to watch how deduction skills are put to use by Poirot. Every minute is a thrill as no one knows what is about to happen and the audience is glued to the setting. The period depicted is stellar. This movie is a must watch. If you get time do watch it, you won't regret it.

Yours truly,

Diksha
